

Working at Sandoz in the US ^[1]

There are many factors that contribute to our success as a healthcare company, but none is more important than our people. Our company is only as good as the individuals behind it, and only through their knowledge and experience will our company continue to perform and grow. Our associates have the energy and commitment to drive us forward and they take pride in providing high quality, affordable medicines that help secure accessible healthcare in the US.

We trust each of our employees to:

- be accountable for their area of responsibility,
- deliver superior performance, and
- act at all times with the highest level of ethics and integrity.

In return for this drive and dedication, we support each of our employees by maximizing their development and career opportunities at local, regional and global levels and rewarding strong performance.

In the following pages, you can read more about what we want from you, and what you can ask from us, should you make the healthy decision to join our team.
